Golden cane palm (Dypsis leutescens) is now widely cultivated around the globe as both an outdoor and indoor plant, When planted outdoors in suitable warm climates, this multi-stemmed palm typically reaches heights of 12 to 30 feet (about 3.5–9 m) From its base, clusters of smooth, yellowish-green, bamboo-like stems rise each stem marked with rings reminiscent of cane or bamboo- earning it names like bamboo palm or golden cane palm. At the top of each stem sit long, pinnate fronds that curve gracefully upward. These leaves are light green with a prominent yellow midrib.
